PRESS RELEASE

José Donoso unanimously reelected President of the Spanish Wind Energy Association

Madrid, January 29, 2010 .- José Donoso, currently Director of Sector Development of GAMESA Technology Corporation, was unanimously reelected President of the Spanish Wind Energy Association (AEE) at the association's Board meeting on Wednesday 27, as proposed by the Standing Commission. He will continue in office for another two years. The companies represented in these AEE bodies highlight the important work done since February 2008 during his first term, in a difficult time for the industry, especially since the adoption last May of the RDL 6 / 2009 which created the Register of Pre-Assignment that has crippled the wind energy industry.

The reelected President, as well as thanking the members of the Board for their confidence, said after his reelection that the next two years are going to be decisive for the future of this industry since the current situation will have to be addressed to lay the groundwork for future development with the new Renewable Energy Plan and the new remuneration framework that the industry is claiming.

José Donoso, an economist, has experience of over twenty years in the renewable energy sector in which he began working in 1987 as the Director of International Department at the IDAE. In 2001, he joined GAMESA as Director of Europe Business Unit. From 2006 until late 2008 he was responsible for the management, planning and control of the development of wind farms worldwide. Currently, he holds the position of Director of Sector Development at GAMESA. He is also a professor in several postgraduate courses and has been a speaker at many energy conferences and seminars.
